PAW: Paragraph a Week

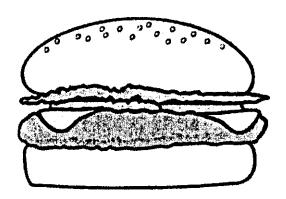

Name _____ Homeroom____

Paragraphs

A paragraph has 3 parts:

- * Topic sentence (top of the bun)
 - This is what your paragraph will be all about.
 It is also the main idea of the paragraph.
- Detail sentences (tasty layers)
 - These sentences support your topic sentence.
 They should explain and describe using details that support your topic.

- Conclusion sentence (bottom of the bun)
 - > This sentence will end your paragraph by restating your topic sentence.

Use three different colors to highlight the topic sentence, supporting details, and the conclusion sentence in the paragraphs below.

Pizza is my favorite food for many reasons. (First,) it can be an entire meal because I can order it with cheese, vegetables, and even meat. (Next,) it's fun to make my own pizza at home because I can arrange the toppings into a pattern or a shape before I put it into the oven. (Finally, pizza is an easy leftover to heat up quickly when I am in a hurry to eat my dinner. These are some of the reasons why pizza is my favorite food!

Going to the beach is an exciting vacation. First, there are plenty of activities to do at the beach such as swimming, boogie boarding, and sailing. Next, it is fun to chase crabs, find sand dollars, and collect beautiful shells along the shore. Finally, the beach is a huge sandbox with plenty of room to make sandcastles! These are a few reasons why the beach is an exciting place to go on vacation.

Dear Parents.

Writing a detailed paragraph is an essential part of the third grade English Language Arts curriculum. The children have been identifying and writing the main parts of a paragraph using the hamburger format during lessons throughout the past few weeks. The students are gaining more confidence and understanding each time they practice. It's now time to practice what they've learned at home.

A variety of homework writing activities will be assigned throughout the year. The writing activities will most likely be assigned during weeks in which a new spelling rule and vocabulary are not introduced. As always, please refer to your child's assignment book for assigned homework. Your child will be writing personal narratives, instructions, opinion paragraphs, persuasive essays, and more! Students should follow the same steps of the writing process at home as they do in class when completing the homework activities in the PAW (Paragraph a Week) packet.

- 1. Pre-writing
- 2. Rough draft
- 3. Revising/Editing with an adult
- 4. Final Copy

A suggested timeline for completing the steps of the writing process is included with each writing activity, but you may alter it to fit your family's schedule as long as the final draft is completed by the due date. Students are required to include and underline 3 or more vocabulary words previously learned in each paragraph. A cumulative list of words can be found in your child's binder. They may also be included on our websites.

These writing activities are designed to include parent involvement. Parents are encouraged to assist their child in developing the rough draft and adding describing details during the revision process to help the reader "picture" what is happening as he/she reads. Extensive writing practice will help your child achieve a solid foundation of paragraph writing, so he/she can easily transition to writing 3 and 5 paragraph essays that are required in fourth and fifth grade. Please use the revising/editing checklist on the rough draft when assisting your child, and kindly sign the rough draft upon completion.

L

What is a Personal Narrative?

- A short story that focuses on a small part of your life
- Written in the first person point of view (use the word I)
- Written the same way you would "tell" it to someone
- Uses details to tell who, what, when, where, why, and how
- Has a beginning, middle, and end
- Describes people, places, and things
- Uses correct spelling and capitalization

Overcoming a Fear

Think about a time you were afraid. What were you afraid of? Why were you afraid? Write a personal narrative to describe what you were afraid of and how you overcame your fear.

Pre-writing: Write an idea about a fear you overcame under each scary face. Choose one idea and complete the hamburger graphic organizer on the next page.

Possible Timeline:

Monday: Complete the pre-writing ideas & hamburger graphic organizer.

Tuesday: Write a rough draft of your personal narrative paragraph.

Wednesday: Ask an adult to help you proofread, revise, and sign your rough draft.

Thursday: Write the final copy neatly. You may print or write in cursive.

Use only the space provided.

Friday: Return your PAW writing activity to your teacher to be graded.

Persuasive Writing

Remember:

Bugs

For writing this week, you are doing a persuasive writing. You are going to be writing about bugs, those nasty yet fascinating little creatures that everyone is swatting away. You are not going to be describing a bug, but rather answering this question:

If you could do away with any bug on this planet, which one would it be and why? You are going to try to persuade people to do away with this bug.

How to Paragraph

For your writing assignment this week, you are to choose an activity to explain step by step. Before writing – you might want to try the activity yourself. In the topic sentence, describe what skill will be taught. Tell what materials are needed (be specific). Explain each step clearly and in order.

EXAMPLE:

How to make a Peanut Butter and Jelly Sandwich
These are the instructions to make a peanut butter and jelly Sandwich. To make a peanut butter and jelly sandwich, you will need two pieces of bread, a spatula or rounded table knife, peanut butter, and jelly or other foods of your choice. Start by getting out the pieces of bread. Then use the spatula or the rounded table knife to scoop some peanut butter out of the jar. Next, use the knife to spread the peanut butter smoothly and evenly across one of the pieces of bread. The next step depends upon what you like to eat with peanut butter. Some people prefer jam, while others enjoy bananas, honey, raisins, or other foods. At this point, if you wish to use jam, use a clean spatula or table knife to dip some jam from the jar. Then spread the jam on the second piece of bread. Finally, place the two pieces of bread together putting the covered sides together. That's it! You can now enjoy your peanut butter sandwich.

Remember: 1. ____ include your skill in the topic sentence 2. ____ transitional words which smoothly take your reader from one step to another 3. ___ clearly edited and revised rough draft 4. ___ brainstorm page done BEFORE you write! 5. ___ signature of adult who helped proofread your work 6. ___ final copy is neat. Possible Time-line: Monday: Think about the above questions and complete brainstorm. Tuesday: Write a rough copy of your paragraph.

Wednesday: Have someone proofread your paragraph and sign their name on the rough copy.

Thursday: Write the well-written final copy

Friday: Turn in your paragraph book.
